

Extra-Wide Coffee Cozy

To make this extra-wide coffee cozy you'll need:

- 2 cotton fabrics
- insulated batting
- 3" of elastic cord (I like 1.5mm)
- one 1/2 - 1" button (two if you'd like to make it reversible)
- pattern template

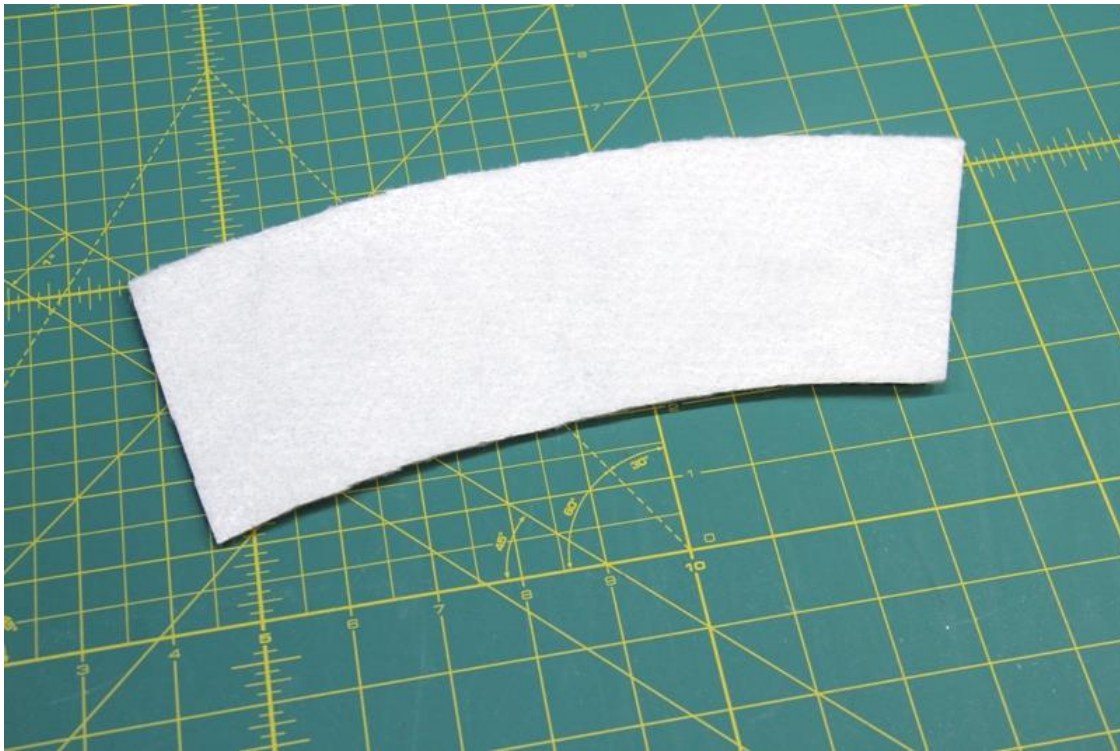

Use the pattern to cut the cozy shape from the first fabric. Flip the pattern over and cut from the second fabric so the two are opposites.

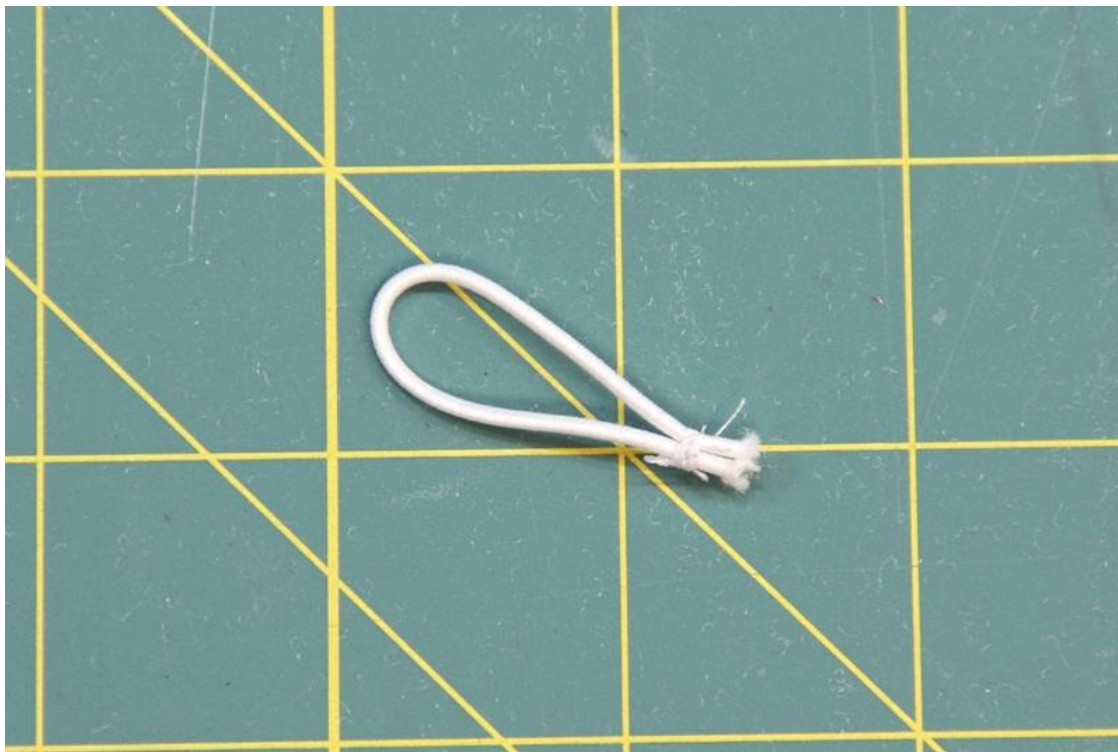

Cut one from insulated batting.

Sew or tie the two ends of the elastic cord together to create a loop. I slide the ends together, side-by-side, under my sewing machine needle and zigzag over them.

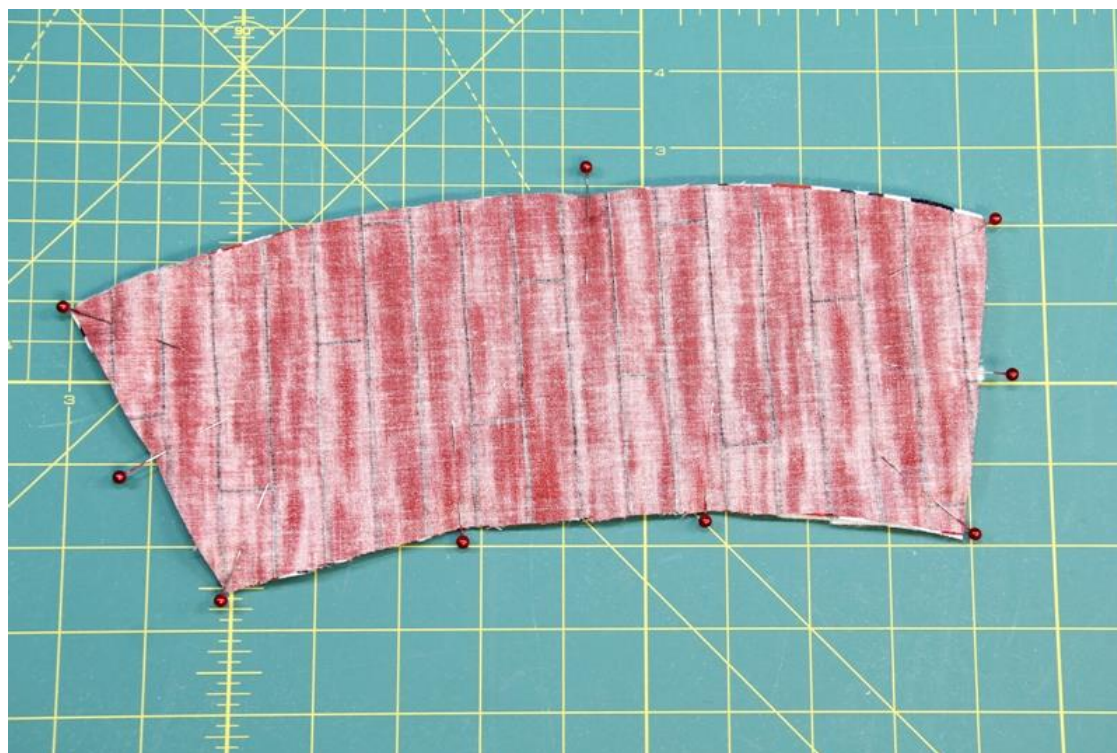

Lay out the insulated batting with the straighter edge to the right. Add the matching fabric piece on top, right side up.

Place the elastic loop on the center of the straighter edge with the loop to the inside. Pin with the head to the outside.

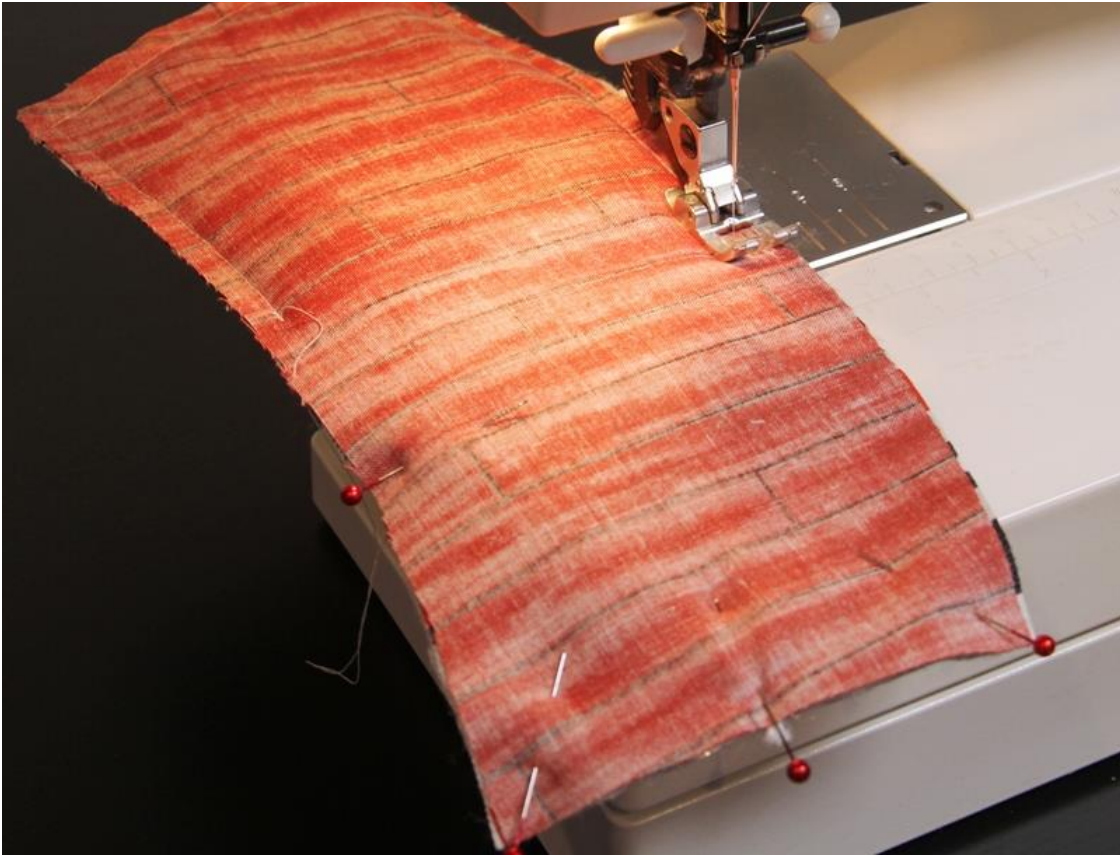

Lay the second fabric on top, right side down. Pin in place.

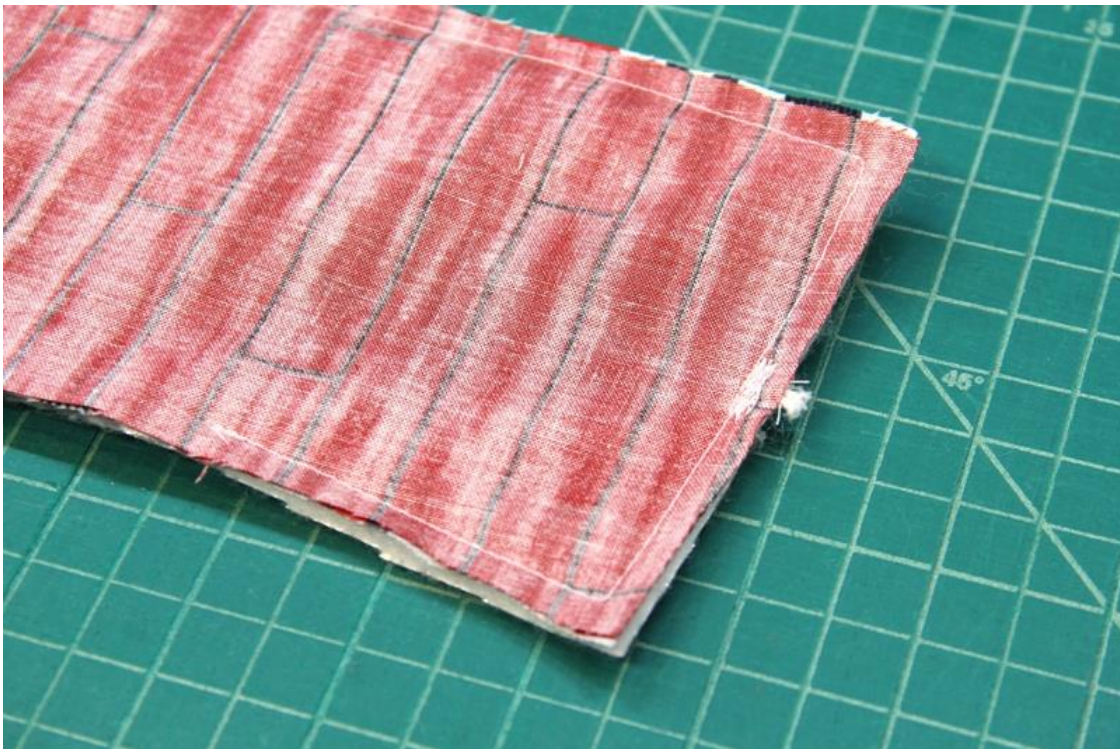

Stitch around 1/4" from the edge, leaving 3 - 3 1/2" open at the bottom.

Back stitch several times over the elastic to make sure the loop won't slip out in use.

Clip the corners. Turn right side out. Press, turning in the opening 1/4".

Topstitch close to the edge, all the way around the cozy.

Bring the two short ends together, as you would if it was around a cup. Mark the spot the elastic reaches on its opposite side, without stretching.

Stitch a button on that spot. If you'd like your cozy to be reversible, add a second button on the opposite side, so the two are back to back. Slide a toothpick under the button, or buttons, before you sew so there will be a gap for the elastic.

These are also great for cold cups. No more wet hands!
